NATIONAL REGISTER OF HISTORIC PLACES
the official list of the Nation's historic places worthy of preservation

National Register of Historic Places

- The National Register of Historic Places recognizes districts, buildings, structures, objects, and sites for their significance in American history, archeology, architecture, engineering, or culture, and identifies them as worthy of preservation. The National Register is a program of the U. S. Department of the Interior, National Park Service, and is administered at the State level by the Maryland Historical Trust.
- The National Register currently comprises over 1300 listings in Maryland, including some 200 historic districts. Listed properties span a wide variety of types and periods, ranging from prehistoric archeological sites to buildings of the recent past, and include rural landscapes, urban and suburban neighborhoods, bridges, sailing vessels, and more.

The Landmarks List was created to preserve structures that have historical, architectural, archeological or cultural merit deemed significant to Baltimore County's heritage.

The Baltimore County's historic preservation law states the five basic purposes are:

To safeguard the heritage of the County as embodied and reflected in the structures and districts that have historical, architectural, archeological or cultural merit; and

To stabilize and improve property values in the districts and in the County generally; and

To foster civic pride in the beauty and noble accomplishments of the past; and

To strengthen the economy of the County; and

To promote the use of historic districts and landmarks for the education, pleasure, and welfare of the residents of the County.
