In Baltimore County, we are committed to protecting and nurturing our environment. Programs like single stream recycling have played an important role in that effort by diverting material from the County's only active landfill. However, there is an even more effective method of conserving resources and preserving the environment – reuse.

By choosing to donate items for reuse rather than disposing of them in other ways, you will not only be helping many worthy causes, but ensuring that these items do not end up in a landfill instead. This guide will help you identify organizations throughout our communities where you can donate items that you no longer need—items like clothes, toys, or even old computers.

Whether you are cleaning out clutter or simply replacing an older item, please use this guide to help someone else put those materials to good use.

Very truly yours,

Kevin Kamenetz
Baltimore County Executive

REUSE DIRECTORY

CHOOSE TO REUSE!

This Reuse Directory is a tool for matching people who have materials to donate with organizations that accept those materials for reuse (and sometimes recycling as well). The directory focuses mostly on non-profit organizations, because these places use the donated materials to supply people with resources they might not otherwise be able to obtain.

Baltimore County promotes reuse because it has many advantages over throwing things away.

By donating reusable items, you will:

- Help other people and organizations
- Reduce disposal costs
- Reduce air and water pollution
- Conserve space in our landfill

You may also qualify for valuable tax deductions when you donate certain items.

So, whether you are cleaning out your house or simply replacing an old item with a new one, remember to check this directory and REUSE!

ABOUT THIS DIRECTORY

The Bureau of Solid Waste Management hopes that this directory provides you with the necessary information to make donating items easier. Although care has been taken to ensure this directory is thorough and accurate, it is strongly suggested that you call organizations first before trying to bring materials to their site. An organization's needs and what they accept often change over time.

The listing of an organization does not constitute a Baltimore County endorsement of the organization's products, processes, or services. This directory should not be considered a complete listing of organizations providing the services listed.

If you have any corrections, suggestions, or additions to this directory, please direct your comments to:

HOW TO USE THIS DIRECTORY

The Reuse Directory has two main sections: the Materials Index and the Organizations Index. Use both references to help find the reuse organizations that are best for you.

Check the Materials Index

Review the Materials Index on pages 5–15 for an alphabetical listing of materials that can be reused. Underneath each material is a list of the names and phone numbers of organizations that use them.

Choose an Organization

There may be several options for reusing a particular item. Check the Organizations Index on pages 16–43 for details about the organizations, which can help you decide which one to choose. This index is in a chart form, and lists organizations alphabetically. It provides addresses, contact names (when given), phone numbers, materials accepted, and details about how to donate.

Donation Procedures and Additional Information

Organizations may have restrictions that may or may not be listed in the Organizations Index. It is always a good idea to call first to verify what can be donated and if there are any restrictions. Most organizations have drop-off procedures, and some places have pick-up services available. A few organizations will accept broken items and repair them before they are reused. The Organizations Index also gives a brief summary of how some organizations reuse items to benefit others, and how individuals could obtain donated items.

BEYOND THIS DIRECTORY

"USE IT UP, WEAR IT OUT, MAKE IT DO, OR DO WITHOUT."

Reuse is certainly not a new idea. People have always handed down and given away useful items. Beyond sharing with friends and family and donating to charities, people have relied on established businesses that specialize in reuse.

Examples include rental centers, thrift stores, and repair shops. Perhaps a repair shop can fix your broken sewing machine, television, or other appliance. Repairing an item often costs less than replacing it. And remember, buying durable products that need fewer repairs will probably save money over the long run.

Check your phone book under "Appliances" (repair and rental), "Rental," and "Thrift Shops" for reuse businesses near you. Newspaper classifieds, the Pennysaver, auctions, flea markets, and yard sales are also great resources for buying and selling reusable goods.

Other options for reuse include materials exchanges. Some examples of online materials exchanges include swapmamas.com, swapstyle.com, swap.com, and freecycle.org. These online materials exchanges give users the opportunity to swap, donate, and/or obtain items from others.

For materials that cannot be reused, yet are difficult to recycle (including certain household batteries and textiles), check out the recycling directory at mdrecycles.org. There you can find listings of organizations that accept various materials that are not recycled by Baltimore County.

MATERIALS INDEX

The following section is an alphabetical listing of materials that can be reused. Check the Organizations Index (pages 16–43) for details on drop-off and pick-up procedures.
